TIM CONSULT 20-Year Anniversary

March 2015

Long-term customer relationships thanks to market knowledge, know-how and creativity

Since 1995 TIM CONSULT has been offering first-class, performant consulting in logistics, supply chain and value network management, as well as in public management. From its small scale beginning our managing founder, Björn Klippel, has led the company towards excellence in its fields of activity.

In 1995, Björn started his consulting practice with a logistics project for edding, the German producer of markers and presentation materials. The audit of edding's logistics set-up led to a second project with the mission to refine the company's logistics strategy and optimise warehousing productivity as well as transport management. Ever since TIM CONSULT has continuously supported edding with successful consulting projects whenever the need arose – as well as many other clients from various industries.

Thanks to their loyalty and trust we proudly look back on two decades of consulting and implementation projects. Two decades shaped by continuous growth and long-term relationships with our customers as well as steadily increasing know-how on markets and processes.

We believe our mission is to support our German and our international clients in optimising their global value networks and their strategic procurement of logistics services. Our public management practice supports public customers throughout Germany in managing and optimising their waste management and street cleaning operations as well as their IT- procurement and the execution of tenders under compliance with complex EU legislation.

Due to our methodology, our process know-how, our well-tailored approach as well as our team's insights into international transport and logistics markets and intralogistics our customers consider us a competent partner for their ever more challenging business.

Throughout our many, varied projects, we put our clients' needs and interests at the centre of what we do. We take on responsibility for their projects from start to finish; from creating a solid concept to its successful implementation.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank our clients most sincerely for their appreciation and the trust they endow us with in return.

With the same purpose we also like to express our gratitude towards our highly qualified and always motivated team whose hard work and dedication to excellence has been a cornerstone of our company's success.

Our happy occasion shall be duly celebrated throughout the year at our many customer events. Irrespective of our festive mood please trust in the competent and reliable support that we will continue to offer to all of you. Thank you!
